William Cecil, 1st Baron Burghley Marquess of Exeter is a title that has been created twice, once in the Peerage of England and once in the Peerage of the United Kingdom. The first creation came in the Peerage of England in 1525 for Henry Courtenay, 2nd Earl of Devon.

William Cecil, 1st Baron Burghley, KG, PC was an English statesman, the chief advisor of Queen Elizabeth I for most of her reign, twice Secretary of State and Lord High Treasurer from 1572. Albert Pollard wrote, "From 1558 for forty years the biography of Cecil is almost indistinguishable from that of Elizabeth and from the history of England." Cecil set as the main goal of English policy the creation of a united and Protestant British Isles. His methods were to complete the control of Ireland,

Lord of the Hurdles. At the 1928 Olympics, Burghley won the 400m hurdles. Burghley was an extremely colorful character, who once set another unusual record by racing around the upper promenade deck of the ocean liner Queen Mary in 57 seconds, dressed in street clothes. He is believed to be the first hurdler to place matchboxes on hurdles...

THE GREAT LORD BURGHLEY CHAPTER I 1520-1549. It may be stated as an historical truism that great organic changes in the relationship of human beings towards each other are usually preceded by periods of quiescence and apparent stability, during which unsuspected forces of preparation are at work.

In the upper story Lord Burghley is depicted kneeling in his robes. A long Latin inscription composed by Lord Burghley describes his eyes dim with tears for those who were dear to him beyond the whole race of womankind. Lord Burghley lay in state here, but was buried at St Martin's Church, Stamford.
